‘Nashik Run’: Supporting the underprivileged

NASHIK: The ‘Nashik Run’, a charitable initiative started by industrial groups in 2003, has grown beyond Nashik and now attracts participants from across Maharashtra and even internationally. Organized annually on the second Saturday of January, the initiative aims to assist the underprivileged and has seen continuous success over the past 22 years. Daily Deshdoot and Deshdoot Times editor Dr. Vaishali Balajiwalé interacted with ‘Nashik Run’ charitable trust’s vice chairman Mukund Bhat, treasurer Rajaram Kasar and general secretary Anil Daithankar during daily Deshdoot’s Samwad Katta initiative.

The initiative was originally launched by major industrial players like Bosch, TDK, and Thyssen Group with the goal of improving the lives of the less fortunate in the region. Funds raised through the event support various sectors including education, health, sports, and the arts. Last year alone, the initiative contributed over Rs. 1 crore to 17-18 local projects, leading to sustainable improvements in the community. The funds are managed regularly, they said. Nashik Run has always maintained transparency in its spending, with all other event-related expenses covered by the organizing industrial groups. Employees and volunteers contribute their time and effort, ensuring that each project is executed meticulously, they said further.

More than a marathon, Nashik Run is a ‘Run for Nation’ and a ‘Run for a Special Cause’. It has also supported local runners, such as Kavita Raut and Monika Athare, who have earned global recognition. Nashikites should support the social cause by purchasing T-shirts and participating in large numbers in the Nashik Run to help make a difference, appealed the trustees. Registrations for the 2025 edition are open through Instagram and the official websites (nashikrun2025 and nashikrun.org). T-shirts can be reserved at the Mahatma Nagar ground stall.
